

It is my understanding that the Banking Asc. is asking to break the Indiana No Call List. I would ask that you not allow this action to happen. Our phones in the past have been badly abused by such calls and we do not wish to return to this form of "Hell". Most adults are very capable of calling the business that we want to deal with when the time comes. Let these folks spend their time and money serving people better to improve the numbers of customers they acquire. There is more than enough advertising now on TV, our computers, and radio without having it on our telephones.
